Hello.

I understand your need to provide water to the citizens of the state. Water shortages are nothing new. That's how water rights came about, turned into laws. Farmers need water to grow crops, to feed people. The proximity and availability for crops, is a limiting factor, given you can't move a field.

Seeing that farmers have the water needed to grow crops is vital to survival. Taxing that water only hurts everyone, making food more expensive. In conclusion, the only reasonable conclusion, is to continue to provide water to farmers, insuring our national safety.

Sincerely,

Rex Wilson M.D.
