Subject: Health issues and water restrictions

Dave and Peg,

Thanks for your efforts and the efforts of the others involved in bringing awareness to both the real issues and realistic solutions.

I am with you, it is ridiculous to think that in this day and age that our elected and appointed "leaders" have left us like a third world hoping for rain that we might take a bit longer shower (I have teenage athletes at home, as you know keeping them clean is a matter of hygiene, not just vanity) or to water our gardens (mine produce both fruits and vegetables and flowers which are swarmed with bees and buzzed by hummingbirds constantly).

For me however, a bigger issue, besides the aesthetic appeal of a nice lawn, is that my kids, our neighbors, and I use our lawn for sporting activities, the very thing our sedentary society needs more of.

My kids will only spend more time in front of a computer/ TV screen if I turn my lawn into a cactus garden.

So I consider the extremely poorly thought-out restrictions a negative health issue as well.

Btw – we already have buckets in our showers, use the gutters to collect rainwater, limit toilet flushing and car washing, etc., etc.

Additional cutbacks to water use by my family will be very limited or not at all.

Regards,

-Rob Berry,
