Re: Comment Letter - Industrial General Permit Amendment

Dear Ms. Townsend:

We are submitting this letter containing comments to the Proposed Amendment to the Statewide Industrial General Storm Water Permit (hereafter "Proposed Amendment").

1.0 BACKGROUND

I serve as the Compliance Group Leader to various storm water Compliance Groups under the current storm water Industrial General Permit (hereafter "IGP"). These groups are involved in the construction materials industry, notably aggregate mining facilities and concrete batching operations.

These facilities use large quantities of water:

- Water is used to control dust at aggregate mining facilities. This is accomplished by using water sprays at material conveyor transfer points and other areas of the process and water is used to control dust on unpaved roads. In addition, at many of the facilities water is used as a part of the aggregate washing operation.
- Similarly, water is used to control dust at concrete batch plants. This is accomplished by spraying water on storage piles and unpaved roads. In addition, water is used in the production of ready mixed concrete.

As a result of the need for water, and to reduce operational expenses, for many years these facilities have had structures to capture and reuse storm water that falls on the site. These structures include basins, pits, tanks and sumps to collect storm water as well as associated pumps and piping to convey the water back to the operational areas of the facility for reuse.

As a result of these improvements, the volume of storm water that is discharged by these facilities has been greatly reduced. These structures have the added benefit of improving the quality of storm water that does discharge by allowing sediment and other pollutants to settle out before discharging.

Many of these facilities have been in existence for years; some of them date back to the 1940s. Many of the storm water containment structures evolved over time as a practical need (i.e., to capture water) and at an accelerated rate over the past couple of decades in an effort address storm water compliance requirements.

Over the past two years, at least 25 of these facilities have received threats of lawsuits from various organizations for alleged violations of the Clean Water Act. As a result of settlements arising from the proposed litigation and/or in an effort to avoid being subject to threatened litigation and/or as a part of ERA Level 1 and Level 2 activities, many of these facilities have been reconfigured (or are in the process of being reconfigured) to increase their storm water storage capacity. Where possible, the storage capacity has been increased to meet the Design Storm Standards in the IGP, specifically, containment of an 85th percentile, 24-hour storm event.

2.0 COMMENTS TO PROPOSED AMENDMENT

Our comments to the proposed amendment focus on the On-Site Compliance Option. As stated above, the member facilities use large quantities of water; therefore, they are aware of the benefit of capturing and reusing storm water. We welcome the addition of a Compliance Option to the IGP, and agree with the Water Board's goal of incentivizing water capture and reuse and/or infiltration. However, the way it is currently written in the Proposed Amendment is unworkable and potentially burdensome. The reasons for this are presented in the following sections.

2.1 Vague Requirements

Under the Proposed Amendment, if a discharger wants to use the Compliance Option, they are required to capture and use, infiltrate, and/or evapotranspire runoff from a design storm event within 24 hours. However, the Proposed Amendment does not state how this is to be calculated.

As a hypothetical example, consider a facility where the calculated volume of runoff from an 85th percentile, 24-hour storm (including applicable safety factor) is 20,000 gallons. If you examined the previous year's water usage data and determined that the average daily use was 21,000 gallons, would this facility meet the requirement?

At concrete batch plants, there are daily fluctuations in orders which in turn cause fluctuations in the amount of water used on any particular day. If a discharger determined that their concrete batch facility could, on average, reuse the runoff generated by an 85th percentile, 24-hour storm event, are they allowed to use the Compliance Option? Section II.H.3.ii requires that the SWPPP "include safety and reliability calculations" to address this requirement, but there is no methodology presented.

Additionally, the Proposed Amendment calls for a "safety factor" but does not indicate what sort of safety factor should be used. This should be clarified.

2.2 Draw Down Period

We fully acknowledge that facilities that capture storm water must have some mechanism to reuse and/or infiltrate the water captured so the BMP can be used to capture water from subsequent storms. However, the 24-hour recovery timeframe is too short and has limited benefit. What this requirement implies is that if an 85th percentile, 24-hour storm event (Design Storm) occurs, the BMP will have to draw down and be ready to contain another 85th percentile, 24-hour storm event the following day, and every day after that. This seems onerous and has little to do with actual rainfall patterns.

Attachment A of this letter includes the daily precipitation data, obtained from NOAA, for the Los Angeles Downtown USC weather station for the period of 01/01/2008 to 12/31/2017. There are many weather stations in southern California, this one was chosen as an example because Los Angeles is a highly industrialized area and its rainfall pattern is typical of weather patterns across much of southern California. The time period chosen was the ten most recent calendar years, a sufficient length of time to identify general trends.

Using data from the Los Angeles County Department of Public Works<sup>1</sup>, we determined that an 85th percentile, 24-hour storm event in this area is 1" of rain. Storms that equaled or exceeded this amount are highlighted in Appendix A.

During this 10-year period, there were 330 days with rainfall. However, there were only two (2) occasions when storms equal to or greater than the Design Storm (1") occurred on back-to-back days:

- December 18-21, 2010. During the period of December 18 to 22, 2010, there were four days in a five-day period with daily rainfall totals that equaled or exceeded 1". The total rain that fell in this period was 7.9". This was a very large storm that occurred over several days, well in excess of a Design Storm event.
- February 27 to March 1, 2014. During this period, there were three days in a row that had a total daily rainfall of 1" or more. The total rain that fell in this period was 4.29". Again, a very large storm event that was well in excess of a Design Storm.

While these types of large storms can and do occur, they are relatively infrequent; they occurred only twice in the past ten years. In these instances, if a BMP could draw down the runoff generated by a Design Storm within 24 hours, there would still have been a substantial volume of storm water discharged as these were very large storm events with daily rainfall totals well above the Design Storm. In addition, the proposed definition of a 24-hour period as being from 12:00 am to 11:59 pm (see Attachment I, footnotes 2 and 10) is unworkable, since many facilities are not operational outside the hours of 8:00 am to 5:00 pm.

Many of the 330 storms that occurred during this period were followed by days or even weeks with little or no precipitation. If the Water Board truly wants to use the Compliance Option to incentivize dischargers to capture and reuse storm water, a reasonable draw down requirement is needed.

The Fact Sheet of the Proposed Amendment contains discussion of a continuous simulation model (hereafter “model”)<sup>2</sup> that was used to evaluate the pollutant removal efficiency associated with an 85th percentile, 24-hour storm event as justification of why 24-hour draw down is appropriate. However, this model is limited and is not sufficiently detailed to justify the conclusions reached.

First, the model focuses solely of metals discharged to the Los Angeles River. The Fact Sheet states that “Zinc does not sorb readily to soils particles and large fractions may be in the dissolved state (non-particulate).”<sup>3</sup> The model ignores other common pollutants such as sediment and oil and grease, instead focusing solely on difficult to treat pollutants (i.e., dissolved metals). At many industrial facilities, especially those in the building materials industry, sediment is the main pollutant of concern. There are large unpaved areas which have the potential to contribute sediment to storm water runoff. BMPs such as basins are effectively used to reduce sediment loading prior to storm water discharge. Assuming that basins used to control sediment should be sized based on an analysis of dissolved metals is suspect at best.

Second, the receiving water body analyzed in the model is a river with TMDLs for various metals. There is no analysis of other types of water bodies, notably those that are not impaired and/or do not have established TMDLs.

Finally, the analysis presented in the Fact Sheet does not give any consideration to technological availability and economic practicability and achievability, cornerstones of BMP analysis in the IGP and Clean Water Act.

If the Water Board wants to determine a draw down requirement for BMPs by using a model, additional analysis is needed to examine different assumptions and variables. This includes analyzing different types of pollutants discharged in storm water and different types of receiving water bodies. The technological availability and economic practicability and achievability of those options must also be considered. Assuming the worst-case scenario (i.e., dissolved pollutants that are “difficult to treat”<sup>4</sup> discharging to a TMDL listed water body) to determine draw down time (and thereby, BMP size) may result in oversized BMPs; a significant cost to dischargers that may result in limited water quality benefit.

2.3 Infiltration BMP Shutoff

The Proposed Amendment includes a requirement that infiltration BMPs “include a shutoff mechanism (e.g., a valve that diverts discharge from entering the BMP(s).”<sup>5</sup> This is not a feasible requirement. At many mine sites there are current and former mining pits that are used to capture storm water and allow it to infiltrate. Some of these pits are very large, up to 100 acres in size. There is no method to install a shutoff that will prevent storm water from flowing into an area this large.

2.4 Infiltration BMP Influent

The Proposed Amendment requires that all influent to infiltration BMPs meet applicable MCL criteria or that groundwater monitoring devices be installed.

It is not appropriate to apply MCLs to storm water runoff. MCLs are standards that apply to drinking water that is provided to people to drink, they are not intended for storm water which infiltrates into the ground. This requirement has never been applied to other entities that capture storm water and allow it to infiltrate (e.g., dam operators, flood control districts, water agencies, US Army Corps of Engineers, etc.).

The other option in the Proposed Amendment allows the discharger to “install groundwater monitoring devices (e.g., lysimeters) to collect monthly samples ... to demonstrate compliance with the MCLs...”<sup>6</sup> How a discharger would comply with this requirement is not clear. If a facility is located in an area where the groundwater level is relatively high, and groundwater is already contaminated, how could the discharger collect “samples of the infiltrated water” that have not been impacted by groundwater?

In addition, this requirement is universally applied in the Proposed Amendment. It does not address infiltration in areas where drinking water has not been identified as a beneficial use of the underlying groundwater or locations where there are no nearby drinking water wells.

If the Water Board’s intent is to “incentivize storm water capture and use in a concerted effort to retrofit the existing “impervious” urban landscape with green infrastructure to restore storm water infiltration capacity previously lost in developed areas,”<sup>7</sup> requiring that the captured storm water meet drinking water standards (which are not applied to any other source of storm water capture) is a substantial hindrance.

2.5 Additional Compliance Burden

Under the current IGP, dischargers are required to prepare a SWPPP and conduct monitoring including sampling up to four storm water discharge events per year.

If a discharger wants to take advantage of the On-Site Compliance Option presented in the Proposed Amendment, they would need to:

- Notify the Water Board of their intent to implement the Compliance Option (either via SMARTS or a Level 1 / Level 2 report);
- Submit detailed information in SMARTS;
- Conduct BMP influent sampling or monthly ground water sampling;
- Sample all bypass and overflow from the BMP(s). (There is no limit to the amount of sampling that would be required.);
- Prepare detailed reports each time there is a discharge and submit it in SMARTS;
- Update the facility’s SWPPP to include:
  - o Photographs of BMPs;
  - o An Operation and Maintenance Plan certified by a California licensed professional engineer;
  - o Calculations certified by a California licensed professional engineer; and
  - o Information on preexisting soil and groundwater contamination if infiltration is used. (It is unclear if additional sampling and analysis must be performed to meet this requirement.)

The regulatory burden of using the proposed On-Site Compliance Option is significantly higher than that of compliance with the current IGP. This is a significant deterrent to dischargers using the Compliance Option.

3.0 POTENTIAL LITIGATION

We realize that the Compliance Option is just that, an option. We acknowledge that no facility will be required to comply with the Compliance Option as it is currently presented in the Proposed Amendment. However, we are very concerned that the Compliance Option will become de facto requirements and/or a “back door” BAT/BCT determination.

The Proposed Amendment Fact Sheet states that “[t]his General Permit requires compliance with receiving water limitations. Dischargers may be deemed in compliance with those limitations through compliance with the On-Site Compliance Option or the Off-Site Compliance Option.”<sup>8</sup> There is similar wording in other areas of the Fact Sheet. Our fear is that this language will be misconstrued to mean that dischargers who do not or are not capable of utilizing the On-Site Compliance Option or the Off-Site Compliance Option are not in compliance with receiving water limitations or the IGP.

The current IGP states that “[d]ischargers shall implement BMPs that comply with the BAT/BCT requirements of this General Permit to reduce or prevent discharges of pollutants in their storm water discharge in a manner that reflects best industry practice considering technological availability and economic practicability and achievability.”<sup>9</sup> The Water Board has provided little guidance as how this analysis is to be done.<sup>10</sup> Because there is no standard methodology to make these determinations, dischargers are subject to “citizen” lawsuits about what BAT/BCT is and whether or not a facility’s BMPs meet it. Due to the vague nature of the requirement, and lack of determination from regulating agencies, these lawsuits are difficult and expensive to defend against.

Over that past few years, there appears to be a general movement towards the concept that capturing and reusing or infiltrating the runoff generated by an 85th percentile, 24-hour storm event, where possible, is BAT/BCT. The State Board has previously made findings in the IGP that support this trend by finding that the design storm standards “are generally expected to be consistent with BAT/BCT, to be protective of water quality, and to be effective for most pollutants” (IGP, Finding 68). Many dischargers have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars per facility to install BMPs that meet the design storm standard.

There is great concern that by establishing the On-Site and Off-Site Compliance Options, citizen suit plaintiffs will argue that only those facilities that can comply with those options meet BAT/BCT. This negative implication is contrary to Finding 68, and would expose entire industries to another round of Clean Water Act citizen suits. In this way, the Compliance Options in the Proposed Amendment appear to “move the goal posts” by requiring that in addition to capturing a design storm, a facility must be able to use and/or infiltrate that water within 24 hours.

4.0 SUMMARY

In summary, we support the Water Board's intent of encouraging facilities to capture and reuse and/or infiltrate storm water runoff. However, the multitude of requirements and reporting obligations in the Proposed Amendment impose substantial burdens on dischargers who wish to do so. Additionally, there are many Compliance Option requirements in the Proposed Amendment that are vague and unclear.

Furthermore, we strongly believe that it is important to modify the IGP in a way that the Compliance Option cannot be misconstrued as changing what constitutes BAT/BCT under the IGP. As currently framed, the IGP Amendment is poised to trigger another round of citizen suit litigation against entire industries that have just spent the past two years defending against suits and making substantial investments in storm water infrastructure.

We look forward to working with the Water Board to resolve these issues and come up with a workable amendment to the IGP.

Respectfully submitted,
