Subject: L.A. doesn't need our water

Water board,

Increasing unimpaired flows on the Stanislaus River is not a good idea. This is where the food is grown. I also happen to know people from L.A. and know there are no water restrictions down there. Our lawns were brown because we were trying to conserve. There lawns look like parks and also know the city of L.A. is the worst one for wasting our water. They already are tapping four different sources to keep water flooding their streets. Unless you build pipelines from Washington state, Idaho and Oregon were it rains for the most part, leave our water alone. We have farming and other needs for it.

Thank you.
