

I understand that tough times call for tough action as illustrated by these emergency regulations. Although the proposed regulations do not appear at face value to be anything more than common sense. What troubles me is the absence of an expiration date or a definition that would cause the expiration of these emergency regulations. I would like to see a declaration that the emergency regulations would expire XX days after the legal end of the drought, Thank you for your consideration,
Gerald H Miller