Background

Water quality impacts associated with agriculture are complex and addressing them requires pooling and focusing the knowledge, expertise, and resources of all interested parties, including growers and their representatives, regulatory agencies, environmental advocates, environmental justice communities, and Tribes and Tribal communities. The State Water Board and the regional water quality control boards (collectively, Water Boards) must develop and implement a long-term sustainable Irrigated Lands Regulatory Program (ILRP) that protects the quality of waters of the state while supporting the viability of agriculture. With the help of our partners, the Water Boards made substantial progress in defining a science-based approach that provides a solid foundation for next steps.

As described on the Expert Panel website, the Water Boards convened a Panel to evaluate the data collected as part of the ILRP and consider the approaches adopted in the Eastern San Joaquin Petition Order and the Central Coast Ag Petition Order. State Water Board contracted with Sacramento State University College of Continuing Education to convene the Panel to provide recommendations for the ILRP. A two-day Panel kick-off meeting was held in August 2025. The two-day meeting provided the Panel with an ILRP overview, perspectives from agricultural representatives and non-governmental organizations, presentations on Indigenous land stewardship and food systems, and available data sources from the Water Boards, approved third-party agricultural representatives, and environmental justice organizations.

The first Public Listening Session was held on October 1, 2025. This session was to gather input from the public and all interested parties that will be shared with the Panel members for their consideration of the Panel charge questions.

Two working group sessions were held on October 13, 2025, and October 22, 2025. These sessions were to facilitate Panel deliberations on issues relevant to the Panel charge questions.

The second Panel plenary meeting is scheduled on October 31, 2025, to develop initial recommendations in response to the Panel charge questions.

Another plenary Panel meeting will be scheduled in January 2026. And one additional public listening session will be scheduled in Fall/Winter 2025 before the remaining plenary Panel meeting for additional public comment. It is anticipated that the Panel will develop a report with recommendations on addressing the Panel charge questions to be presented to the State Water Board in 2026.
