BACKGROUND

The Basin Plan contains water quality standards and implementation programs for waters of the state in the Central Coast region. More information about the Basin Plan is available on the Central Coast Water Board's Basin Planning Program website.<sup>3</sup> A "Triennial Review" of the Basin Plan is required by state and federal laws to review the adequacy of water quality standards (e.g., beneficial uses and water quality objectives) and other elements of the Basin Plan. The Triennial Review may also be used to determine if Basin Plan updates are needed to keep pace with applicable regulations, advances in science and technology, and physical changes in the Central Coast region.

During the public comment period, Basin Plan amendments can be added to the 2024 Preliminary List, as proposed, without judgement on accuracy, feasibility, or merit by Central Coast Water Board staff. After public comments are considered, Central Coast Water Board staff will develop a 2024 Priority List of proposals for amendments to the Basin Plan that will direct Basin Planning Program efforts over the next three years. The Central Coast Water Board will consider adoption of the 2024 Priority List and Triennial Review Resolution at the October 17-18, 2024, Board meeting. A public notice and agenda will be posted prior to the meeting on the Central Coast Water Board's meeting agenda website.<sup>4</sup>
