

EMPLOYEE RECOGNITION AWARD

June 2025

EMPLOYEE: Annie Hall

UNIT: Forest Activities Unit, Redding office

TITLE: Environmental Scientist

SUPERVISOR/TITLE: Ashley Hernandez, Senior Environmental Scientist

Annie Hall is being recognized for her outstanding work in the Forest Activities Unit. Annie joined the Central Valley Water Board's Redding Office as a Scientific Aid in January of 2023 and quickly moved into a staff, Environmental Scientist, position in June of 2023. Annie is responsible for overseeing Timber Harvest Projects on private land in Shasta County. She has approached her work with professionalism, initiative, and dedication and has quickly become a valuable member of the team!

Annie consistently takes on additional projects and responsibilities. She has demonstrated a strong interest in developing new GIS tools to improve workflow and enhance program efficiency. Annie has also played a key role in the review of a Programmatic Timber Environmental Impact Report and has ensured that best management practices alignment with water quality objectives. She has collaborated and built strong working relationships with other state agencies which has deepened our understanding of their requirements.

Annie is proactive and eager to learn, often volunteering for new projects and stepping in to assist whenever it is needed. Her positive attitude and commitment to high-quality work make her an asset to the Timber Unit. We would like to thank Annie for her dedication, consistency, and work ethic, she is a valuable member of the Redding office and the agency as a whole.
