2009 SWAMP Achievements Report

SWAMP Monitor Newsletter

What is it?

The SWAMP prepares a quarterly electronic newsletter called the "SWAMP Monitor" to communicate program advances and changes, development of new resources and tools, and other important water quality related information.

Why is it important to the State?

In order to support effective resource management, SWAMP communicates the results of its monitoring, coordination, and assessment activities through a number of information products designed to efficiently convey information in a timely manner to decision makers.

Why is it important to me?

The newsletter provides quick links and tantalizing sound bites to keep the subscriber informed.

How will this information be used?

The information is sent to the subscriber and is also posted on the SWAMP website.
