

To All, seems that my trips to southern san Joaquin valley show a lot of dead farm land , due to lack of water to deliver. Please do not export any more water south. A better solution would be to move water from the Colorado river, I'm sure the farmers there would be happy to sell southern California water. The peripheral canal is a bad idea, this money would be better spent building a delivery system from the Colorado river. Try working with our adjacent states to solve this problem.

Edward Jackovic