Subject: 11/18/09 Russian River Frost Protection Workshop

To whom it may concern:

We support the request by the National Marine Fisheries Service for an emergency reasonable use rulemaking to eliminate take of listed salmon and steelhead by diversions for frost protection in the Russian River. Failure to do so will continue to result in take, and the use of tremendous volumes of water diverted for frost protection will continue to pose a future threat to ESA listed salmonids, some on the verge of extinction, throughout the entire Russian River watershed.

Thank you.
